Our Victory Program

b. Since the cost of living would be stabilized by the seven-point program, labor would not have cause for increased wages.
c. The War Labor Board, in settling disputes between industry and labor, can effect wage and salary stabilization.

Point Four

Farmers are vitally interested in the fourth point designed to stabilize farm prices. The President proposes to do this by legislation which would:
a. Establish ceilings at parity instead of 110 per cent of parity.
b. Permit the Government to sell its surplus stocks of farm commodities on the open market as a means of stabilizing prices at parity.

Point Five

The fifth point urges increased purchases of war bonds. This is a sound request not only because of the need of money with which to finance the war but also to disperse the war debt into the hands of as many citizens as possible.

Point Six

The sixth point relates to the rationing of all essential commodities that are scarce. Instead of scarce goods going to the person who has the most money with which to buy, the price will be fixed and the goods distributed on the basis of need. Certainly a more equitable distribution can be made on the basis of need than upon the ability of a few people of wealth to obtain a sufficiency. This is truly a democratic means. Such a measure insures that needs will be taken care of in the order of their importance and protects the medium and low income groups from prohibitive prices. Most of us are familiar with rationing. Thus far automobiles, tires, sugar and gasoline have been placed on the rationing list. Others will likely soon be added.

Point Seven

The last point brings out the necessity of discouraging installment buying and encouraging the payment of obligations in regard to installment buying it might be well argued that this of all times is not the time to buy something for which one isn't able to pay at the moment. Such large scale investments as home buying are, of course, excepted. The fact that in the last war many people contracted debts at high price levels was the direct cause of their ruin in post war adjustments. Such a repetition would be almost inexcusable. Insofar as the payment of debts is concerned, it is only logical that their payments should be encouraged at a time when money is plentiful and when they are more easily paid than to carry them on into a period where the debtor will likely be less able to make payments.

No One Is Helped By Inflation

It is oftentimes difficult for some of us to realize that higher prices do not necessarily mean higher incomes. It is characteristic of inflation that costs keep ahead of income, therefore, net income is not increased but is more often decreased. Farmers will remember in the post war period that prices of the things which they bought did not decline in proportion to the price of the things which they sold. This experience left them with tremendous indebtedness, ruinous prices, and restricted markets.

Even though in the long run inflation is detrimental to us all, it should be recognized that there are some farmers who may be in favor of a little inflation. Those farmers who do not own the land which they operate do not fear landed indebtedness. There are many farmers who supply only the labor involved in production, and expenses of production and investment in land are borne by another. They too see in rising prices an increase in their wages. It should be pointed out to this group that they must take the long-run viewpoint.

Consider the effect of the last war on Alabama agriculture. The mortgage indebtedness of Alabama farmers:

1910-14	$25,943,000
1916	22,213,000
1919	40,199,000
1921	72,259,000
1930	97,850,000
1940	69,309,000

Thus, Alabama farmers accumulated a huge indebtedness during the last war, most of which has not been paid. It can be seen that most of the indebtedness was accumulated during the inflationary period of the first world war when cotton was 30 cents a pound or better. Think how much more labor and money would have been necessary to pay the debt! In 1920, with a mortgaged debt of 63 million dollars, 397,560 bales would have paid the debt. Yet in 1940, with a 69 million dollar debt, 1,526,300 bales would have been required to pay the debt. That was almost twice the number of bales produced in that year!

Consider too the interest charges on farm mortgage debt:

1910	$1,770,000
1920	5,188,000
1930	6,386,000
1939	8,600,000

This cost to farmers is burdensome. It demands money which could be used productively in increasing the production of "essential" items: peanuts, milk, meat and eggs.

With cotton acreage reduced by a third from the last war Alabama farmers cannot afford to add to their present debt. It is to the best interest of all farmers that inflation be prevented. The President's program is, therefore, to the farmer's interest.

Jeep farming—That's something new under the sun. But it may really be a new phase in the Nation's farming. Government agricultural engineers are working to perfect the Jeep to furnish power for farm operations after the war is over. This picture was made near Auburn, Alabama, by Kenneth Rogers for the COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, which recently featured a story on the possibilities of the Jeep as a farm implement.

Here's What To Eat For Health

It's healthy you would say. Eat these every day:

Milk—At least a pint for each person, a quart if possible. Evaporated or dried milk may be used.

Oranges, tomatoes, grapefruit, berries, or raw salad—At least one.

Green, leafy or yellow vegetables—At least one helping.

Other vegetables and fruits—One or more helpings.

Lean meat, poultry, fish, and cheese—One of these each day. Dried beans, peas, soybeans, or peanut butter may be substituted occasionally.

Eggs—One for each person. Count eggs used in cooking.

Bread, potatoes, cereals—Use unboltoned corn meal, whole wheat or "enriched" flour or bread.

Butter or fortified margarine—Use for spreads on bread or potatoes or for seasoning vegetables.

Fat meat, lard, vegetable shortening—Use moderate amounts for shortening or seasoning vegetables.

Sugar, sirup, candies, sweet desserts—Use limited amounts. The use of too much sweets is a national habit. During the present emergency the entire ration of sugar should be used for sweetening fruit.

When moving old bulls give them one and a half ounces of chloral hydrate in a pint of water after they are loaded for shipment. They will lie down and sleep which relieves them of the strain of the journey.

Poultry Brings Nice Profit To Mr. and Mrs. Grady Williams Of The Mt. Zion Community

"Poultry can be raised for profit as well as helping out with our Food for Victory program," says Mr. and Mrs. Grady Williams of Mt. Zion community.

That one can turn defeat into victory is being demonstrated by Mr. and Mrs. Williams who two years ago purchased their first baby chicks and lost most of them. Not to be outdone by that failure, they remembered that saying, "If at once you do not succeed, try, try again," and this last year the Williams did not give up but started all over again.

Still believing that it is best to grow into the poultry business, Mr. and Mrs. Williams purchased in March last year 50 White Leghorn baby chicks. By June when the Government was encouraging an increase in poultry production, they decided to purchase through the Farm Security a second lot of 100 chicks.

From these 150 chicks they raised 75 nice pullets. The older lot began laying in August and by November the majority of the June-hatched chicks were laying. When asked a few weeks ago if he knew about what his hens were doing, Mr. Williams replied: "I don't know just about, but I know exactly what they are doing."

He went immediately into the house and brought out a calendar that was all marked up but all these marks meant something to Mr. Williams. Each day he entered the number of eggs laid and when eggs were sold or fed he entered that too. By June 1, 1940, the amount received or paid out.

Summarizing the income and expense as recorded on this calendar for the six-month period beginning November 1 and ending May 1, some interesting facts were discovered. During the time the 72 hens remaining in the flock had laid a total of 8,150 eggs which were distributed over these six months as follows: No-

MANY COFFEE FARM HOMES MODERNLY ELECTRIFIED

Harassed electricity is doing the chores on Coffee County farms and freeing the farmer and his wife from many back-breaking laborious duties.

One of the most recent innovations is the bucketless well. One of this type is in operation at the home of Jamie Weeks in Center Ridge community. The tickle, formerly hung over the well, was fastened at the bottom. The rope (without bucket) runs through the tickle and over a spool within a huddle enclosure placed on a platform above the well. The water is slung from the moving rope into the enclosure and through a barrel tank to be piped into the family kitchen. A small electric motor furnishes power which may be turned on and off both indoors and at the well curb.

Mr. Weeks installed the equipment himself at the cost of $75. No more going up and down steps for cooking and wash water for the house. The house has electric washer and running water. Mr. Weeks does not draw water by hand for his stock.

Electric chicken brooders are another contrivance tried and found successful. Both these and the well motors are rapidly taking hold in the county.

Home-made breads and other foods reminiscent of the frugal pioneer days are in the experimental stage this year and a number of farmers are trying wheat and rice on the one acre scale.

Seeds of all kinds are being saved for next year's planting. Blue lupine has been grown in plots for seed in order to supplement the soil-building crops of kudz and cotton. Now old friends on the farm are growing from home-grown seeds. Farm women are mixing their own face powders and creams, drying fruit and vegetables and renovating last year's food in voluntary campaigns for conservation and victory.

AS WE SOW, SO SHALL WE ALSO SURELY REAP

We read in the Bible in Galatians 6:7-8 these words: "He that sows to the Spirit shall also reap the Spirit; he that sows to the flesh shall also reap corruption; but he that sows to the Spirit shall also reap life everlasting." Then in the fifth chapter, 16th and 20th verses, we see what it is to sow to the flesh: Adultery, idolatry, hatred, murder, drunkenness, malice, strife, fornication, heresy. We are told if we do these things we shall not see the Kingdom of God, so we can readily see that we can sow as we please. God does not make us do either way. But in order to reap life everlasting we have got to sow good seed to the Spirit. When we see a church member doing all those bad things, we know he is sowing to the flesh. We are told that the tree is known by its fruit, or by their fruits ye know them. Now, when we sow bad seed, we deceive ourselves and mock God, for it is an illusion. We are told that the girl's father for her sake in marriage. He said, "No, you are too young." It made the boy mad, so in order to reach vengeance on the old man, he sowed some of his bad seed. He knew this would ruin the land. After this, he married the girl, so the old man gave him the land he sowed to. We will surely reap what we sow, for God has said it.

It seems like by the way the average church member sow, he can sow any way and get by. But it is not the case. We can't serve God and Mammon. Now let's read our Bibles, go to church, sow in a way that we may reap—some thirty, some sixty, and some an hundred fold. Be not deceived, God is not mocked, for whoever sows a man's seed, that shall he also reap.

AS WE SOW, SO SHALL WE ALSO SURELY REAP

We read in the Bible in Galatians 6:7-8 these words: "He that sows to the Spirit shall also reap the Spirit; he that sows to the flesh shall also reap corruption; but he that sows to the Spirit shall also reap life everlasting." Then in the fifth chapter, 16th and 20th verses, we see what it is to sow to the flesh: Adultery, idolatry, hatred, murder, drunkenness, malice, strife, fornication, heresy. We are told if we do these things we shall not see the Kingdom of God, so we can readily see that we can sow as we please. God does not make us do either way. But in order to reap life everlasting we have got to sow good seed to the Spirit. When we see a church member doing all those bad things, we know he is sowing to the flesh. We are told that the tree is known by its fruit, or by their fruits ye know them. Now, when we sow bad seed, we deceive ourselves and mock God, for it is an illusion. We are told that the girl's father for her sake in marriage. He said, "No, you are too young." It made the boy mad, so in order to reach vengeance on the old man, he sowed some of his bad seed. He knew this would ruin the land. After this, he married the girl, so the old man gave him the land he sowed to. We will surely reap what we sow, for God has said it.

PRAYER-MEETING TO BE HELD AT SMITH HOME

All women and girls who want to pray for our men, boys and nation are invited to come to the home, one mile west of Butteville upper mill, going out to Troy and Elba highway, at 2 o'clock on next Saturday afternoon, for we must realize that God is our strength. Through the power of the Holy Spirit, we will be able to pray for our men, boys and nation, and we will be able to pray for our men, boys and nation, and we will be able to pray for our men, boys and nation.

Simple Treatment Outlined
AUBURN, Ala.—A simple and comparatively inexpensive treatment for cattle lice on a small number of animals is a mixture of dorrin or cube powder thoroughly mixed with equal parts of finely ground dusting sulphur, advises W. H. Gregory, extension livestock specialist.

Any pint or quart size jar or can with a tin screw cap cover may be made into a practical duster. With a small nail, punch about a dozen holes in a circular area about the size of a quarter dollar in the lid of a jar or can. Place the mixture in the container, screw the lid tight and shake it on all hairy parts of the animal, including the stomach and tail.

Any insecticide that will kill lice if it are found ten days after treatment, a second being given after treatment should be given.

VOCATIONAL FIELD

Work In Coffee County Total

Over $193,324

The services of vocational agricultural and home economics field workers will be discontinued in Coffee County within the month of June due to the shortage of teachers owing to war conditions. This work, started six years ago with vocational teachers provided by the Federal Government, was somewhat in the nature of an experiment. It consisted in the training of adults, farmers and farm women, in better practices for the farm and home. The campaign has been well justified in the improved living conditions of low income farm people.

So eager are the rural people for the continuation of the adult group meetings that they plan to continue unaided with an occasional visit from the classroom teachers of the county's four high schools.

The field workers involved have been assigned to classrooms: Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Paden of Enterprise will go to Kinston; Mr. Rudolph of Kinston has gone to Auburn; Miss Madeline Hester and Mrs. Kinston to Blountville; P. R. Morgan from New-Brockton to Hayneville; Miss Madeline Hester from Elba to Cullman; W. L. Walsh will remain in Elba, according to present plans.

A series of meetings have been held by the groups during the past two weeks. Some were for the completion of work and business on hand, others were social meetings with picnic suppers followed by games, which were attended by all families of the community.

VOCATIONAL FIELD

Work In Coffee County Total

Over $193,324

The services of vocational agricultural and home economics field workers will be discontinued in Coffee County within the month of June due to the shortage of teachers owing to war conditions. This work, started six years ago with vocational teachers provided by the Federal Government, was somewhat in the nature of an experiment. It consisted in the training of adults, farmers and farm women, in better practices for the farm and home. The campaign has been well justified in the improved living conditions of low income farm people.

So eager are the rural people for the continuation of the adult group meetings that they plan to continue unaided with an occasional visit from the classroom teachers of the county's four high schools.

The field workers involved have been assigned to classrooms: Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Paden of Enterprise will go to Kinston; Mr. Rudolph of Kinston has gone to Auburn; Miss Madeline Hester and Mrs. Kinston to Blountville; P. R. Morgan from New-Brockton to Hayneville; Miss Madeline Hester from Elba to Cullman; W. L. Walsh will remain in Elba, according to present plans.

A series of meetings have been held by the groups during the past two weeks. Some were for the completion of work and business on hand, others were social meetings with picnic suppers followed by games, which were attended by all families of the community.
